FESSH TRAINING AWARD 2012

The doors of Clinique Jeanne D'Arc are opened 24/7

Visitors and residents are not rare here and treated not as regular guest but as friends

An example of an elegant procedure: radius shortening with 4-leg staple for Kienbock disease (surgery by Ethiene Gaisne).

PURPOSE: sharing international experience is very important and efficient part in training for a hand surgeon.

METHODS: 4 week training in Clinique Jeanne D'Arc, Nantes, France. 8 surgeons are providing over 13000 surgeries a year and consulting about 25000 patients in ambulatory. The visitor is able to watch and participate in any kind of activity.

Surgery alone can't solve all the problems. Special thanks to the hand therapists.

A case with X-fuse, an interphalangeal implant designed by Philippe Bellemere

Brand new Tactys PIP prothesis even before its presentation on FESSH 2012 (surgery by Thierry Loubersac)

A very functional alternative for total wrist fusion designed also by Philippe Bellemere

The clinic is truly «pyro-carbonated» — this is an interpositional arthroplasty for MCP joints in RA patient.

Discussion and decision making is essential. It is not less exciting than surgery itself

Me & Philippe Bellemere, the one who made this training possible

RESULTS: over 200 surgeries participated, numerous patients seen in consultation, orthotic technic learned. Hospitality and attention of the doctors in Clinique Jeanne D'Arc makes practice easy and very comfortable, all the cases are clearly explained and surgical technics are shown at a glance.

CONCLUSION: FESSH training award gives a wonderful opportunity to enrich the knowledge and improve the skills for the one with a deep passion to hand surgery.

One of the emergency cases — nearly total forearm amputation

The same hand 2 months after replantation shows quite good function (surgery by Yves Kerjean)

Working with FESSH makes you feel safe and comfortable like in a strong and tender hand
